

THERE'S A LOT WE COULD LEARN FROM KYLE HICKEY'S LIFE

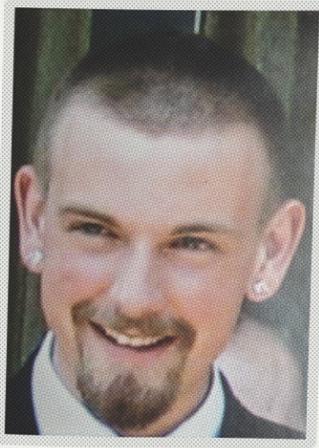

When you think about the brightest lights in your life, it's often the people who live their lives with the biggest smile. Kyle Hickey is one of those people.

As a child, Kyle struggled with chronic health issues, including asthma. Though this little boy was in and out of the hospital, he was always upbeat, smiling, even joking with nurses and doctors.

At 14, when many boys wouldn't dare show their parents affection in public, he proudly told his mom Estella that he loved her, in front of his friends. Other people's happiness genuinely mattered to him.

"Livin' the dream!" was his motto for life — and he meant it. This was especially true for Kyle when he landed his dream job at the local auto body shop, where his attitude rubbed off on his coworkers.

One evening, he was cleaning paint guns while his buddy worked nearby. The solvent he was using exploded and

In March 2008, Kyle's life was cut short by a workplace tragedy.

Visit dayofmourning.ns.ca to see Kyle's story, and pay tribute to Nova Scotians who have died or been injured at work.